Student teaching introduction letter examples

Loni Jonetta, student teacher of the University of Wisconsin - WhitewaterJonetta22@uw.edu262.555-2000 September 1, 2008 Dear Family, Hi, my name is Loni Jonetta and I will be working as a student teacher for the next six weeks in your child's class. I'm working on certifying the education of children born before the third grade. This is the sixth and final semester of my studies as a teacher. I also had the experience of educating students with children between the ages of six months and five years and loved working with infants, toddlers, preschool and junior children with and without special needs. I look forward to this unique learning opportunity in your child's kindergarten. I'm originally from Chicago but have been at school in Whitewater for four years. In addition to gaining practical experience with children, being in college education and professional studies for three years I also worked for four years in Chicago as a camp counselor. Outside of working with children, some of my interests include hiking and reading. My goal after graduation is to get a teaching position on an inclusive program in urban settings for children with special needs and those who develop as a rule. I will work with students in your child's classroom in a variety of capacities with both small and large groups in mathematics, science, social studies and the arts. I will gradually increase my responsibilities with students during the semester and spend the next two weeks of study. I'm very excited to work with your child this semester. Please feel free to stop, call or email me if you have time as I would welcome the opportunity to meet you along with your child. Sincerely, (sign the letter) Loni Jonetta You have a great resume and you have a diverse background and education that stand out from other applicants. Unfortunately, if you neglect the cover letter, your job statement may not make it past the first round. In the education industry, it is important to start strong in your introduction with a large cover letter. You should be able to explain how much you bring into the organization and express a lot of interest in the position. Looking at examples is also helpful, such as this free student teacher cover letter sample. Dear Mr. Drake, since I can remember, I've wanted to teach. From playing at school as a kid to joining the future teachers of America's Club, I knew I wanted to become a teacher. I would take this time to let you know I am interested in opening a student teacher. Despite the fact that I do not yet have teaching experience, I have many years of experience with children. For the past five years, I have worked as a consultant in a camp for children with special needs. I enjoyed planning enriching activities including crafts, games, sports and hilarious parodies for In my studies, I also worked to prepare for a career in education. I found out, I found out aspects of great instruction and know that attracting students is key. I am committed to thinking about how I learn the best practices in education. I feel like I would like to make a good addition to your faculty as a student teacher. I am ready to take the next step and hope to meet for further discussion. Thanks for being in time to review me for this post. Create my cover letterWhat to include in the cover of the teacher-student LetterOnce you found the perfect opening job, it is important that this cover letter impress the hiring manager. Write a cover letter for each specific work that interests you, so this is not a general letter form. Let's mention the specific actions you have taken that reflect work responsibilities. Then, model words and phrases from a free student teacher cover letter sample to make your letter even more effective. Industry specifics to include non-teacher candidates need to be sure to include specific examples of the traits that are needed in the teaching profession. A free sample of the student teacher's cover letter has several possible examples. Here are some other qualities that you can discuss in the accompanying letter: Ready to learn: Because a student teacher is still part of the learning process, it is imperative to demonstrate your willingness to absorb things from your internship. Teachers work with children on a daily basis, so you must show a firm ability to work well with others. Student studies and a terrible opening letter!!! What do you have to say? They tell you: give a little information to describe yourself ... but don't let it work any further. Make it fit... but not in detail. Be positive... But don't be too cheesy. SO WHAT DO WE DO???? Calm down! I went through a couple of websites and used my co-op's introductory letter as an example. I'm going to sly your back! Here's what I have as an example: Dear Parents and Guardians, Hello, my name is Kew, and I'm thrilled to be a student teacher in your child's class for the next few months! Given that I'll be in class with your child almost every day and will see you at parent teacher conferences, I thought I would tell you a little background about me. I am a senior in majors in primary education and a major in mathematics. My previous student teaching placements were in kindergarten and 3rd grade class. I haven't actually grown too far from here, and that's why I'm familiar with the area! In my spare time I love ordering scrap, reading, painting ceramics and spending time with my family. Needless to say, I am very excited to be a teaching student this semester. I wanted to be a teacher. some sort of as long as I remember and I'm happy to work with this class because I can say that they are a really amazing group of students. I know that this will be a time full of learning, not only for the students, but also for me! If you have any questions, you can send them ____Teacher____. Thank you for this opportunity! Sincerely, Kew (see it wasn't that hard for :P) Applying for a student teacher position can seem like a daunting task if you don't have prior teaching experience; however, you can still communicate your ambitions and talent by writing a professional cover letter. While your resume is used to take stock of your education and work experience, your cover letter explains why you are well suited to the role. Your letter is an opportunity to get to know the school and introduce teachers and principals to your style of communication. Cover letter textDear To Mr. Kraus, I understand that Valleywood High School is currently accepting applications for a new student teacher. I am happy to apply for this unique opportunity and I am writing to explain why I am an excellent candidate for this position. I am currently pursuing my Bachelor of Education and I am required to serve as a student teacher for one full year in order to meet graduation requirements. While studying undergraduate studies, I helped teachers with preschool programs, coordinated summer camps for sixth graders and guided small groups of young children on nature tours as part of their excursion program. During each experience, I prepared lesson plans and learning outcomes and measured the progress of my students throughout the program. I have rules and instructions and setting firm boundaries. I am also looking for ways to simplify processes so that my attention is still primarily on teaching children rather than inconsequential tasks. Once again, I am grateful for the opportunity to apply for this position as a student teacher at Valleywood High School. I am sure that my personality and evolving teaching style will fit well into the philosophy of your school. Please contact me by phone if you would like to schedule a meeting or discuss my qualifications further. I look forward to hearing from you. Sincerely, John Doe Dow
